

FAD MAGAZINE
ONLINE/DAILY
16 OCTOBER

FAD magazine

7 TO SEE AT FRIEZE MASTERS

By Lee Sharrock • 16 October 2025

Share — Twitter Facebook LinkedIn

Thousands of years of artistic expression can be found under one roof at Frieze Masters, in a calmer, more manicured environment than the bigger, more contemporary Frieze London. Expect ancient artefacts, rediscovered sculptures and Old Masters mingling with modern icons and contemporary artists. Under the new leadership of Emanuela Tarizzo, Frieze Masters 2025 brings together 120 galleries from 26 countries, asserting its reputation as a must-see fair for museum-quality historical works. Twenty galleries are exhibiting at Frieze Masters for the first time. From ancient art to 20th-century icons, the fair showcase works that show the power of art history and connect across time and place.

Curated sections include; Studio, curated by Sheena Wagstaff; Spotlight, led by Valerie Cassel Oliver; and Reflections, a new section curated by Abby Bangser and inspired by the object collections of Sir John Soane's Museum and Kettle's Yard.

Here are 7 highlights to look out for:

The Gallery of Everything

The Gallery of Everything are presenting renowned 20th century female artist, Madge Gill (1882 – 1961) in the Spotlight section. Tate have acquired Madge Gill's Untitled (Venus Mid Heaven), 1920/30 ink on calico work for the National Collection and National Portrait Gallery purchased Gill's Untitled, 1954, signalling a growing institutional interest in artists working outside of traditional art world frameworks.

James Brett, founder of The Gallery of Everything, said:

"This is a true cause for celebration – not just for Madge Gill, but for the thousands of image-makers who have long existed outside the art-historical canon. Gill represents the everywoman and everyman who create not because they were taught to, but because they are compelled to. Her inclusion in two of the world's leading museum collections marks a profound shift towards recognising art born from inner drive, belief, and transcendence."

frieze.com/gallery/gallery-everything